

SIMONE NORMAN

Actor & Comedian

Height: 5'4" Eyes: Brown Hair: Brown

Simone Norman is an actor, comedian, and writer based in Brooklyn, New York. She has performed stand up, sketch, and improv in venues and festivals across New York City. After graduating from Barnard in 2015 with a degree in Psycholinguistics, she merged her academic knowledge of communication and the human psyche with dynamic performance, resulting in distinctly reflective, absurdist shows. In 2017, Simone was named one of OnMogul's, "New York City Comedians To Look Out For In 2018," and recently shot a promo ad for Comedy Central's upcoming "Stand Up Comedy Month." She is currently a resident performer at the People's Improv Theater and launched a six month run of her solo show "Simone Norman Is: Intrusive" at the PIT in January of 2019. Simone has guest starred in several local web series, small independent films, and the popular NYC public access alternative comedy show "The Special Without Brett Davis." In addition to theatre, Simone deeply enjoys political activism and local civic engagement; recently, she played an integral part in the election of Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez for Congress.
